

New AIA Guide Inspires Youth to Take Action!

We're excited to announce that the Activism in Action (AIA) Guide: "How to Become an Activist?" is now available and already making an impact across Europe!

The guide, developed with contributions from youth workers, young people, and partner organisations in Slovakia and the Netherlands, offers an inspiring and practical roadmap for anyone interested in engaging in activism. From starting a campaign to organizing peaceful protests, the guide gives tools, tips, and real-life stories from young changemakers to encourage and support youth participation.

Coming Soon: Inspirational AIA Training Workshops Across Europe

In the coming months, partners of the AIA project will be organising interactive training workshops in their respective countries. These sessions will engage at least 10 participants per country—including youth workers, educators, and young people—and offer hands-on guidance based on the insights from our AIA Guide: How to Become an Activist?

Each workshop will address key topics such as the importance of activism in youth work, strategies for meaningful participation, and how to turn ideas into action. These Open Educational Resources-based sessions are designed to empower participants with practical tools and real-life examples, ensuring that activism is not just discussed, but practiced.

Save the Date: Final AIA Seminar in the Netherlands – 30 October 2025

As the project nears its conclusion, we are proud to host our Final Exploitation Seminar in October 2025 in the Netherlands. This event will bring together youth workers, educators, stakeholders, and young people—both seasoned and new to activism.

The seminar will feature inspiring guest speakers and young activists, offering valuable insights and encouragement to professionals supporting youth engagement. We will present the project's tools, outcomes, and long-term potential, engage in meaningful dialogue, and explore how these results can be transferred, scaled, and embedded into ongoing practice. A highlight of the event is the exhibition "The Face Behind Activism", showcasing portraits and personal stories of activists collected throughout the project.
